Diary of an Awesome Friendly Kid

by Jeff Kinney

It's finally time for readers to hear directly from Rowley in a journal of his own. Rowley writes about his experiences and agrees to play the role of biographer for Greg along the way. But Rowley is a poor choice for the job, and his "biography" of Greg is a hilarious mess. Wimpy world fans won't want to miss this one!

Dragonfell by Sarah Prineas

Rafi Bywater is unlike anyone else. The people in his village don't trust him because he spends too much time in an abandoned dragon lair. When a stranger, Mister Fritch, accuses Rafi of being "dragon-touched," Rafi sets off to discover the truth about dragons—and about himself. On his journey, Rafi befriends Maud, who has secrets of her own. Together they search for dragons while escaping from a dangerous dragon hunter, engaging in a steam-engine car chase, and figuring out what Mister Fritch really wants with Rafi. And, oh yes, they do find the dragons.

Jake the Fake Goes For Laughs

by Craig Robinson

Jake cracks up the crowd as a budding comedian at the Music and Art Academy talent show, but his new ego is no laughing matter. And when he starts blowing off his friends to pursue his "art," Jake's big head becomes a huge bummer. Plus, being the funny man is way tougher than it looks. Luckily, Jake has his mentor Maury Kovalski, a retired comedy showstopper, to teach him the ropes about humor--and humility--before Jake loses all his biggest fans and best friends!
